ARMS CONFERENCE CONSIDERS REDUC- ING LAND FORCES

FRANCE, ITALY AND JAPAN ALL PROMISE REDUCTION OF STANDING ARMIES

GREAT BRITAIN MADE NO PROM-ISE AND U. S. FORCES ARE AS LOW AS DESIRED

(By United Press)

Washington, Nov. 21—France, with the world's largest army, is ready to cut its effectiveness.

With this official declaration by Premier Briand, the arms conference today began discussion of the third major task—limitation of land armament. The question was referred to the armament committee.

The cut of the French army's effectiveness could be made, Briand said, through a bill decreasing the period of compulsory military service from three years to one and one-half years. France, however, needs a strong army because of the Russian and German "menaces," the premier said.

Italy, with an army of about 200,000, will make further reduction soon, Senator Schnazer, her chief delegate, said.

The United States with its army of 57,000, is not faced with the question of limiting land armaments, Secretary Hughes said, indicating that the American delegates believe this country's land force has been cut to the minimum.

Baron Kato pledged that Japan's army would be cut to the lowest point consistent with her national safety.

Great Britain did not promise any great reduction in her army.

Belgium, Baron Decartier said, had already reduced her army to the minimum considering her national safety.

All the nations expressed sympathy with the position of France in Europe, but Balfour of Britain, said Briand's speech was not "hopeful for any solution of the question of land armaments."

Man to Man Diplomacy Tried

Washington, Nov. 21—Man to man diplomacy was being tried today in renewed efforts to adjust the naval armament question.

Admirals Beatty, Kato and Coontz, representing respective Great Britain, Japan and the United States, were picked for a conference, in which it was hoped Japan could be induced to drop her demand for a navy 70 per cent of that of Great Britain and the United States.

Britain and United States are together on the question of ratios allotted to them.

Want Details Discussed

Washington, Nov. 21—The Chinese delegation is trying to thwart Japan's openly expressed desire for the side-tracking of "details" in the far eastern conference, being what they call a Japanese effort to escape the washing of "soiled diplomatic linen." The Chinese let it be known today in advance of the far eastern committee session, scheduled at four P. M., that they will soon have an open discussion of a number of "details," such as the Shantung-Manchurian and secret treaty questions.

An important statement regarding the American attitude to several phases of the far eastern problem may be made to the committee it was learned. Elihu Root has been co-operating with Secretary of State Hughes in a comprehensive study of all Oriental questions and he may speak for the United States.

Secretary of State Hughes, as chairman, will have the say whether to open up sensitive topics or not.

N. D. SUPREME COURT ASKED FOR RESTRAINING ORDER THIS AFTERNOON

(By United Press)

Bismarck, N. D., Nov. 21—The Supreme court will be asked at 2:30 today to issue a temporary order restraining the state canvassing board from certifying the election of the Independents in the recent recall election. The petitions will assert that thousands of signatures to the recall petitions were illegal, and that some signers repudiated as many as 54 times. Other signatures were those of persons who did not vote for governor in the last election as required by law, the petition says.

A large number of tax-payers, practically all non-partisans entered the courts petition. The injunction, if granted, will halt the state canvassing board "from taking any further action" in regard to the recall election. The effect would be to leave Governor Frazier and his non-partisan staff in office, and prevent the election of Nestos as governor. The canvassing board is scheduled to meet Wednesday morning, and the inaugural Wednesday afternoon.

BRYAN LAUDS JAPAN'S OFFER AS TO CHINESE

SAYS IF ACCEPTED WILL SETTLE
FAR EASTERN QUESTION
SATISFACTORILY

BY WILLIAM JENNINGS BRYAN

(Copyright 1921 by United Press)

Washington, Nov. 21—Japan has delighted her friends and disappointed her enemies. She has proposed a schedule of the far eastern question that seems all that could be desired.

Baron Kato presented, in his statement to the committee on the far eastern problems, four points that are broad enough to furnish the foundation for a permanent settlement of the controversy between Japan and China, and as a matter of fact, between China and the rest of the world:

First—The open door.

Second—Equal opportunity in China.

Third—That the Chinese must themselves work out their domestic situation.

Fourth—There shall be no interference in the international affairs in China.

The open door and equal opportunity in China is all that other nations can ask.

The right to work out her own affairs is China's contention. It admits China to full fellowship with other great nations.

The policy proposed by Japan is entirely consistent with the spirit of the conference as embodied in the proposals for reduction of armaments.

RIGHTS OF INDIAN IN HUNTING GAME

BUTTERFLY CASE COMING UP BE-FORE COURTS AT COUNTY
SEAT THIS WEEK

Court is sitting at Walker this week but the famous Butterfly case wherein it is challenged that an Indian has any more right to hunt than a white man will be taken up, has not been taken up as yet. The Indian agent here in conversation with the publisher recently stated that their department did not claim that the Indian has a right to hunt anytime any place and any animal as many of the redskins claim, but that the Indian has a right to hunt on Indian allotments and on lands set aside for the Indian by the federal government. The agent says that when once settled there will be no trouble from the Indian as the Indian when it comes to law is not an outlaw, but avoids trouble at all times. The plea of shooting game to keep from starving makes no impression on a jury and the question now is will the Indians be allowed to hunt when the law prohibits the white man.

They are not in sympathy with the present interpretations.

N. D. SUPREME COURT ASKED FOR RESTRAINING ORDER THIS AFTERNOON

(By United Press.)

Bismarck, N. D., Nov. 21—The Supreme court will be asked at 2:30 today to issue a temporary order restraining the state canvassing board from certifying the election of the Independents in the recent recall election. The petitions will assert that thousands of signatures to the recall petitions were illegal, and that some signers repudiated as many as 54 times. Other signatures were those of persons who did not vote for governor in the last election as required by law, the petition says.

A large number of tax-payers, practically all non-partisans entered the courts petition. The injunction, if granted, will halt the state canvassing board "from taking any further action" in regard to the recall election. The effect would be to leave Governor Frazier and his non-partisan staff in office, and prevent the election of Nestos as governor. The canvassing board is scheduled to meet Wednesday morning, and the inaugural Wednesday afternoon.

BRYAN LAUDS JAPAN'S OFFER AS TO CHINESE

SAYS IF ACCEPTED WILL SETTLE
FAR EASTERN QUESTION
SATISFACTORILY

BY WILLIAM JENNINGS BRYAN
(Copyright 1921 by United Press)

Washington, Nov. 21—Japan has delighted her friends and disappointed her enemies. She has proposed a schedule of the far eastern question that seems all that could be desired.

Baron Kato presented, in his statement to the committee on the far eastern problems, four points that are broad enough to furnish the foundation for a permanent settlement of the controversy between Japan and China, and as a matter of fact, between China and the rest of the world:

First—The open door.

Second—Equal opportunity in China.

Third—That the Chinese must themselves work out their domestic situation.

Fourth—There shall be no interference in the international affairs in China.

The open door and equal opportunity in China is all that other nations can ask.

The right to work out her own affairs is China's contention. It admits China to full fellowship with other great nations.

The policy proposed by Japan is entirely consistent with the spirit of the conference as embodied in the proposals for reduction of armaments.

RIGHTS OF INDIAN IN HUNTING GAME

BUTTERFLY CASE COMING UP BE-FORE COURTS AT COUNTY
SEAT THIS WEEK

Court is sitting at Walker this week but the famous Butterfly case wherein it is challenged that an Indian has any more right to hunt than a white man will be taken up, has not been taken up as yet. The Indian agent here in conversation with the publisher recently stated that their department did not claim that the Indian has a right to hunt anytime any place and any animal as many of the redskins claim, but that the Indian has a right to hunt on Indian allotments and on lands set aside for the Indian by the federal government. The agent says that when once settled there will be no trouble from the Indian as the Indian when it comes to law is not an outlaw, but avoids trouble at all times. The plea of shooting game to keep from starving makes no impression on a jury and the question now is will the Indians be allowed to hunt when the law prohibits the white man.

Sweeping Revision Of the Prohibition Reg- ulations Are Predicted

(By United Press.)

Washington, Nov. 21—A sweeping revision of the prohibition bureau's regulations and forms governing the distribution of whiskey and other spirits for medicinal use, is about to be ordered by the treasury department.
New regulations and forms greatly liberalizing restrictions on legitimate medicinal uses for all intoxicating beverages are to be wiped out or modified, in consequence of expert legal opinion, so that they will conform to the Volstead law as written, and no attempt can be made to interpret the statute on a restrictive basis. They are not in sympathy with the present interpretations.

I. C. C. ORDERS RE- DUCTION IN RATES

(By United Press.)

Washington, Nov. 21—The Interstate Commerce commission today issued an order calling upon all railroads in western and mountain-Pacific lines, to put into effect on or before December the 24th, the reduction of approximately 16 per cent on interstate rates on grain, grain products and hay, recently ordered.

Roads Willing to Reduce

St. Paul, Nov. 21—Minnesota railroads are willing to reduce freight rates ten per cent on all farm products.

Representatives of the railroads so informed the state railroad and warehouse commission today. They were summoned on an order to show cause why intra-state rates should not be reduced in accordance with the fifteen per cent reductions on hay and grain recently ordered by the interstate commerce commission.

Railroad representatives said they would ask a re-hearing before the interstate commerce commission on this order and attempt to have it provided for a ten per cent reduction on all farm product rates instead of fifteen per cent cut in hay and grain rates.

GOVERNOR PREUS MAKES APPEAL FOR LAW ENFORCEMENT

(By United Press.)

St. Paul, Nov. 21—An appeal for prohibition law enforcement was made by Governor Preus today. He asked all citizens of Minnesota to support the Volstead act and other legislation wholeheartedly.

"The laws we have enacted to secure prohibition must be enforced and should be seriously observed by all,"
said the governor.

Comparing the conditions abroad with those in the United States, he said: "The peace, comfort, stability and confidence which we enjoy are unknown elsewhere in the world."

FATHER ACCUSED OF TRIPLE MURDER

10-YEAR-OLD SON SAYS HIS FATH-ER KILLED DIVORCED WIFE AND MOTHER

(By United Press.)

Wilmington, Ohio, Nov. 21—A 10-year-old child was the accuser of his father, Oliver Vandervoort, under arrest here charged with a triple murder. Vandervoort insisted he was a victim of circumstances in being found at the home of his divorced wife with the bodies of Bertha Vandervoort, 30; her mother, Mrs. Kaff Quiglow, and Howard Boiser, a visitor.

His son, Oliver Vandervoort, Jr., however, answered police queries with "Papa did it."

The shooting occurred here late Saturday night. Authorities believe the man was intoxicated. They found a loaded revolver in his automobile, but no trace was found of the weapon believed to have been used in the triple murder.

Vandervoort insisted he was near the house Saturday night when his son ran out and called him to help. A few minutes before he had seen the figure of a woman or man leave the house, Vandervoort said.

Vandervoort was accused of a second shooting before the triple murder.
Rodney Wallace, a farmer, charged Vandervoort shot him during an argument over liquor.

JEWELRY STORE MANAGER CHARGED WITH EMBEZZLEMENT

(By United Press.)

St. Paul, Nov. 21—Henry A. Weisman, manager of the Gittleson Jewelry company, was charged with embezzlement today by police.

This action followed a reported theft of $100,000 worth of diamonds and $200 in cash in the jewelry store last Saturday morning.

Weisman was taken to the Central station soon after he said three bandits had entered the store while he was alone and took the diamonds. At that time, police said, Weisman's story did not sound right. He has been held at the Central station.

This morning steps were taken to have him released through habeas corpus proceedings. The police brought charges to prevent his release and his case was continued until Dec. 1st. He was then placed in the county jail.

FRENCH PREMIER MAKES OFFER TO ARMS CONFERENCE

PAINTS GLOOMY PICTURE OF FRANCE'S POSITION AS OB-JECT OF GERMAN HATE

SAYS GERMANY COULD ASSEMBLE
GREAT ARMY IN A FEW DAYS
FULLY TRAINED

(By United Press.)

Washington, Nov. 21—France will cut in half her effective army by reducing fifty per cent, Premier Briand of France, today told the arms limitation conference. This, he said, is France's offering to peace.

"Tomorrow it is certain by the action of France's government, the period of military service will be cut in half," the Premier said. As a result of this, France's army may be said to be reduced by half."

Briand's pledge that France will cut her army, now the largest and most effective fighting organization in the world, came as he painted a gloomy picture of the dangers threatening France.

"Germany," he said, "still has a spirit of revenge. France, perhaps more than any other nation, wants to bring peace to the world."

It was, as had been expected, a picture of France menaced by German hate, which Briand painted in explaining why his country longing to disarm cannot do so.

There was also the expected appeal to Americans to understand the French position—how France would like to join the United States in making great sacrifices, but cannot.

America, he pointed out, has not realized the situation which lies at the very door of France and Germany.

"With Ludendorf teaching war doctrines, France cannot close her eyes or release her vigilance," Briand said,
"for the Teuton war lords have maintained to a large degree the confidence of the German people. America should understand that Germany is not disarming as the world generally supposes, but has several powerful bodies of armed men under different names, all ostensibly police, but all world war veterans, and all have been trained for war."

He described these forces in detail to show, he said, that Germany has so many trained men, particularly officers, that it would be only the work of a few days to marshal an army that would endanger France. Then he took up the menace of Russian bolshevists, that Lenin and Trotsky could call six million men to arms and throw them against western Europe. France's present army stands as a barrier against this, he said.

REINSTATE YOUR INSURANCE NOW

Every person formerly identified with the military or naval service during the late war who has allowed his government insurance to lapse for more than eighteen months may reinstate such insurance prior to January 1, 1922, by paying two months' premiums on the amount of insurance he wishes to reinstate, providing he can pass the required physical examination.

Those who are unable to pass the examination on account of a disability received in or aggravated by military or naval service may reinstate their insurance by paying all premiums due from the date of lapse to the present time, together with interest at five per cent (5 per cent) per annum, compounded annually upon each premium from the date the said premium was due.

This means that if you were formerly identified with the service and intend to reinstate your insurance and can pass the physical examination, that you will have to attend to the matter immediately.

It also means that those who are unable to pass the required physical examination as stated above, will have to arrange to pay up their back premiums immediately if they intend to carry government insurance. This is a matter of utmost importance and should be taken care of before the time set by the treasury department expires. The government is equipped to handle this matter with the utmost expedition and any person interested and entitled to consideration, as stated above, should communicate with the United States Veterans' Bureau, District 10, Keith-Plaza building, Minneapolis, Minn.

Term insurance, that is, war time insurance which is now in force, may be converted without medical examination to any of the following forms of insurance:

Twenty payment life, 30 payment life, 20 year endowment, 30 year endowment, endowment at the age of 62.

Conversion into any one of these forms may be made at any time prior to March 4, 1926, but inasmuch as it is to the advantage of the insured to convert the insurance into one of the forms mentioned above, it should be done as soon as possible if the person's circumstances will permit.

There is at the present time an insurance cashier's representative stationed in the District 10 office of the United States Veterans' Bureau, Minneapolis. Premiums may, therefore, be paid from this time on in person, or by mail, to the above mentioned representative at the Keith-Plaza building, 1700 Hennepin Avenue, Minneapolis, Minn. It will be of advantage to every ex-service man or woman, who has or has not kept up his or her insurance, to apply to the Veterans' Bureau, and investigate the benefits which are obtainable to those insured under the government plan. If your insurance has lapsed do not fail to reinstate the same before January 1, 1922.

NATIONAL SAFETY WEEK

Schools, Civic Clubs and Other Organizations to Join in Observances

"National Safety Week," during which it is planned to stress safety education among grammar school pupils and teachers, will be observed throughout the country December 4 to 10 as part of a national safety campaign being conducted by the Highway and Highway Transport Education Committee.

According to information reaching the office of the committee, official proclamations setting the week aside are to be issued in many states. Schools are arranging special exercises, and in many cities civic clubs and other organizations will discuss the best means of reducing the number of automobile accidents. Chambers of commerce, automobile clubs, and others who are cooperating with the committee in the conduct of this campaign, have written the Washington office of their intention to bring every influence to bear to reduce the number of accidents in their respective communities.

The week is to be a climax to the campaign, which is in the form of two contests, one among grammar school pupils and the other among grammar school teachers. Prizes for the pupils and for the teachers are offered as an incentive for them to participate. As a result, section is vying against section in efforts to make the campaign effective in reducing the accident toll of the nation, which reaches a total of 10,000 fatalities annually.

In New York State virtually every city and county superintendent has signified an intention of urging upon pupils the necessity of exercising special care while on the streets. Superintendent Ettinger of New York City has requested that every grammar school principal encourage pupils and teachers to participate.

Pennsylvania is taking a leading part, bulletins announcing the contest having gone to each city and county superintendent of schools. State Superintendent John Callahan of Wisconsin has endorsed the movement. "I have issued a circular letter to the city and county superintendent and supervising principals of the state calling attention to the contests," he says.

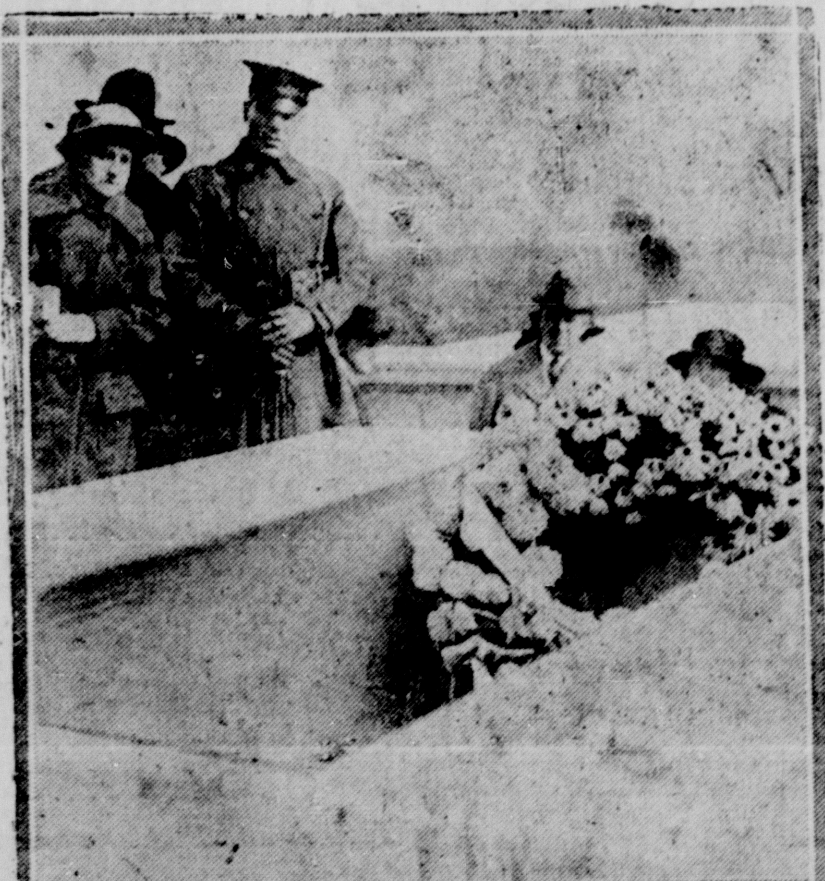

In Detroit, the school officials are urging their pupils to enter the contest. "We are making plans now for this contest and are anxious to give it our best support," runs a letter from that city.

Miss Annie Webb Blanton, state superintendent of North Dakota, writes as follows: "This is to assure you of our interest in the conduct of the national safety contests. I am interested, not only as Chairman of the Division of Education of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, but also in my position as state superintendent of public instruction in North Dakota." Miss Annie Webb Blanton, state superintendent of Texas has written Governor Pat Neff, requesting him to issue a special proclamation designating the week for observance in that state. From South Carolina Superintendent Swearingen writes: "It will be a pleasure to do what I can to cooperate. I am in hearty sympathy with the project because emphasis on safety can not be misplaced in these days of recklessness."

State Superintendent Will C. Wood, California, writes: "I have asked all the schools of California to observe December 4 to 10 as 'Safety Week'."

Hydroelectric projects to develop a total of more than 750,000 horsepower are under consideration in Spain.

Red Cross Medical Supplies to Russia

Supplies valued at more than $1,750,000 will have been sent into Soviet Russia by the American Red Cross and distributed by the American Relief commission before the end of the year. These supplies, furnishing relief to tens of thousands of suffering persons have been drawn from the European and American Red Cross stocks.

Medical supplies form an important part of these relief materials. Malaria and typhus are prevalent in the most severe forms and in the famine and disease stricken provinces will result.

SAGE TEA BEAUTIFIES AND DARKENS HAIR

DON'T STAY GRAY! IT DARKENS SO NATURALLY THAT NO BODY CAN TELL

You can turn gray, faded hair beautifully dark and lustrous almost overnight if you'll get a bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound" at any drug store. Millions of bottles of this old famous Sage Tea Recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, are sold annually, says a well-known druggist here, because it darkens the hair so naturally and evenly that no one can tell it has been applied.

Those whose hair is turning gray or becoming faded have a surprise awaiting them, because after one or two applications the gray hair vanishes and your locks become luxuriantly dark and beautiful.

This is the age of youth. Gray-haired, unattractive folks aren't wanted around, so get busy with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound tonight and you'll be delighted with your dark, handsome hair and your youthful appearance within a few days. Adv.

REINSTATE YOUR INSURANCE NOW

Every person formerly identified with the military or naval service during the late war who has allowed his government insurance to lapse for more than eighteen months may reinstate such insurance prior to January 1, 1922, by paying two months' premiums on the amount of insurance he wishes to reinstate, providing he can pass the required physical examination.

Those who are unable to pass the examination on account of a disability received in or aggravated by military or naval service may reinstate their insurance by paying all premiums due from the date of lapse to the present time, together with interest at five per cent (5 per cent) per annum, compounded annually upon each premium from the date the said premium was due.

This means that if you were formerly identified with the service and intend to reinstate your insurance and can pass the physical examination, that you will have to attend to the matter immediately.

It also means that those who are unable to pass the required physical examination as stated above, will have to arrange to pay up their back premiums immediately if they intend to carry government insurance. This is a matter of utmost importance and should be taken care of before the time set by the treasury department expires. The government is equipped to handle this matter with the utmost expedition and any person interested and entitled to consideration, as stated above, should communicate with the United States Veterans' Bureau, District 10, Keith-Plaza building, Minneapolis, Minn.

Term insurance, that is, war time insurance which is now in force, may be converted without medical examination to any of the following forms of insurance:

EFFECT OF PUBLIC OPINION

The Minnesota Railroad and Warehouse Commission calls attention to the fact that the reduction in railroad freight rates on farm products, authorized last week by executives of the railroads, is in no way connected with the 16 per cent reduction ordered Oct. 20 by the Interstate Commerce Commission, to be effective Nov. 20.

The reduction announced by railroad officials will not change the attitude of the State Commission, it is said, in its order to show cause why the Minnesota railroads should not put into effect the 16 per cent reduction on wheat, grain and hay ordered Oct. 20. The hearing in the Minnesota case on the order to show cause why within-the-state rates should not be reduced to the basis of interstate rates, ordered by the Interstate Commerce Commission, was set for today. Members of the Commission declare that they will endeavor to have that reduction put into effect.

The voluntary reduction authorized by the railroad executives last week shows the effect of public opinion on the minds of the railroad owners and operators. This reduction affects all farm products, while the Interstate Commerce Commission order affects only rates on grain and hay. In spite of claims of adverse financial conditions made by the roads, they recognize the financial plight of the farmers and apparently realize that they should take some action to relieve the general economic situation, in the opinion of Fred Putnam, a member of the Minnesota Commission.

TARIFF RETALIATION

A frequent argument that is heard against a protective tariff is that foreign countries would retaliate. But we note in an editorial in a recent number of The Protectionist that foreign countries have been busy for some time past boosting their tariff rates. Great Britain, Japan, Austria, British East Africa, British Honduras, Jugo Slavia, Czechoslovakia, Roumania, Australia, the Barbados and Latvia have all enacted protective tariffs during the past few months, and The Protectionist says many others are about to do likewise, notably Argentina.

Probably if a protective tariff law had been placed on our own statute books six months or so ago, the opponents of the protective policy would claim that these foreign tariff increases were enacted in the way of retaliation. But as these foreign increases antedate our own tariff revision by many months this charge of retaliation, which has always been held up as a warning by free traders, vanishes into thin air.

It appears that protection is the order of the day abroad as well as at home.

EQUAL VOTING PRIVILEGES

A great majority of the American people will no doubt agree that President Harding, in a speech in a southern city recently, was absolutely right in declaring for equal voting privilege, no one can truthfully deny that it is entirely right and proper for a state to establish such qualifications for voting as it may deem necessary for the protection of stable government, and an educational test, a tax-paying requirement, or other reasonable limitation may be justified by good reasoning—but the restriction should apply to whites and blacks alike.

In addition to this, it might be said also that there should be willing acquiescence in that provision of the Federal constitution which requires that when a state disfranchises any of its citizens its representation in Congress shall be reduced accordingly. This, however, can hardly be expected from the Democrats who are in control of the voting machinery in what is known as "the solid south," judging from the past.

BONDS BOOSTED BY CONGRESS

In the opinion of administration officials, the recent advances in the prices of Liberty Bonds are largely due to the legislation now pending in Congress providing the means for the refunding of the foreign debt. With the details of the debts finally worked out and agreed to by the debtor nations, the time of payment of both interest and principal will be definitely determined, and the country will know when the Treasury will be relieved of a corresponding portion of its Liberty Bond burden.

ECONOMY IN GOVERNMENT

In Washington, reductions in the estimated expenditures for the current fiscal year still continue to be made. It is now confidentially predicted that the total expenditures will not exceed $3,940,000,000, and that figure is $94,000,000 less than the estimate sent to Congress on August 10. This is another evidence of the determination of the executive departments to cut every possible dollar from the great burden the taxpayers are obliged to carry.

DO YOU WANT $5,000

If you do, capture a mail robber. The postoffice department is giving wide publicity to the offer of $5,000 reward, to be paid for the arrest of anyone participating in or attempting a mail robbery. The penalty for robbing the mails is ten years in prison for the first offense, and in cases where a dangerous weapon is employed. So be on the watch for your mail robber.

The Minnesota Railroad and Warehouse Commission has issued an order to all Minnesota railroads to show cause why the rates and charge for the transportation of grain and hay within Minnesota should not be reduced as ordered by the Interstate Commerce Commission on Oct. 20. The order to show cause will be heard by the Railroad and Warehouse Commission on Monday, Nov. 21.

The Internal Revenue Department will return Federal income taxes aggregating approximately $15,000 to co-operative creameries of Minnesota. These creameries, through misinformation, filed income tax returns and paid taxes averaging between $100 and $400 each, though purely co-operative creameries are exempt from income tax.

There is a shortage of approximately 1,200,000 homes in the United States but the outlook for building activities is steadily improving, according to members of the Associated General Contractors of America, who are making a tour of the country preparatory to making a report on building conditions to Secretary Hoover.

Names of Minnesota women loom large on the program for the second annual convention of the Fifth Region of the National League of Women Voters, which opened at Des Moines, Iowa, today. The Fifth Region includes the states of Minnesota, Iowa, North and South Dakota, Montana and Wyoming.

"Higher taxes," remarks the Fort Wayne Sentinel, "are the product of the inflated dollar, and the inflated dollar is the product of Woodrow Wilson."

Dec. 4 to 10, "National Safety Week," a national safety campaign will be conducted throughout the country.

during which special exercises will be held in the schools, and civic clubs and other organizations will discuss the best means of reducing the number of automobile accidents.

State Auditor Chase announces that to date this year, $6,838,749.60 in State and Federal aid to schools has been distributed through his office. This great total of school aid places Minnesota in the first rank of aid to schools, with possibly one or two states exceeding Minnesota's total.

Compared with any European nation the United States is infinitely better off in every respect. Living costs are lower, wages are higher, and business is more prosperous and on a sounder basis. We have every reason, indeed, to be thankful this year.

WOOL POOL DOUBLES SIZE IN 12 MONTHS

St. Paul, Nov. 19.—Minnesota wool growers are sticking to their 1920 plan of marketing their wool by pooling, according to results of a survey completed today by the Minnesota Farm Bureau federation.

In spite of decreased production, the amount of Minnesota wool being marketed or manufactured this year on the cooperative plan exceeds that of last year, when the state shipped more than 400,000 pounds to the national farm bureau wool pool in Chicago. Reports from the national federation show that this year's pool is almost double that of 1920, Minnesota farm bureau officials said today.

In 1920, American wool producers pooled 14,750,000 pounds; so far this year, 27,093,466 pounds have been pooled, according to farm bureau records. Farmers in 22 states are pooling their 1921 clip; last year, only 11 states had adopted the co-operative pool.

Hundreds of Minnesota farmers are carrying the wool pool one step farther, by taking their wool to the nearest woolen mill and having it made up into garments for their families. The farm bureau survey showed that in 12 counties alone, 49,000 pounds of wool is being made up into clothing which is to be sent back to the farmers.

Although the wool market last year was almost stagnant, says a report prepared by the farm bureau federation for its county organizations, "the national wool pool has meant a distinct cash gain for the farmers who shipped wool of good quality. Reports from county farm bureaus show the average price offered by local buyers last year averaged 12 cents a pound, with eight cents the best offer made in some counties."

"Prices received by the national pool for Minnesota wool ranged from 29 cents a pound for the best grade to 17 cents for inferior quality. Cass county's report, taken at random, shows the average net return to the producer, 19.2 cents a pound, is several cents higher than the price offered by local buyers in Minnesota last year. Cass county's report even shows that there were no local buyers on hand."

The average price offered Minnesota growers this year for wool on the farm is 12.3 cents, the survey showed, with some counties reporting seven cents as the best price obtainable. Two hundred thousand pounds of Minnesota and South Dakota wool of medium grade has just been sold from the national farm bureau pool at 20 cents, according to a report received from the national federation. Sale of 3,750,000 pounds of pooled wool in less than two weeks also was reported.

The Minnesota Railroad and Warehouse Commission calls attention to the fact that the reduction in railroad freight rates on farm products, authorized last week by executives of the railroads, is in no way connected with the 16 per cent reduction ordered Oct. 20 by the Interstate Commerce Commission, to be effective Nov. 20.

The reduction announced by railroad officials will not change the attitude of the State Commission, it is said, in its order to show cause why the Minnesota railroads should not put into effect the 16 per cent reduction on wheat, grain and hay ordered Oct. 20. The hearing in the Minnesota case on the order to show cause why within-the-state rates should not be reduced to the basis of interstate rates, ordered by the Interstate Commerce Commission, was set for today. Members of the Commission declare that they will endeavor to have that reduction put into effect.

The voluntary reduction authorized by the railroad executives last week shows the effect of public opinion on the minds of the railroad owners and operators. This reduction affects all farm products, while the Interstate Commerce Commission order affects only rates on grain and hay. In spite of claims of adverse financial conditions made by the roads, they recognize the financial plight of the farmers and apparently realize that they should take some action to relieve the general economic situation, in the opinion of Fred Putnam, a member of the Minnesota Commission.

A frequent argument that is heard against a protective tariff is that foreign countries would retaliate. But we note in an editorial in a recent number of The Protectionist that foreign countries have been busy for some time past boosting their tariff rates. Great Britain, Japan, Austria, British East Africa, British Honduras, Jugo Slavia, Czech-Slavia, Roumania, Australia, the Barbados and Latvia have all enacted protective tariffs during the past few months, and The Protectionist says many others are about to do likewise, notably Argentina.

Probably if a protective tariff law had been placed on our own statute books six months or so ago, the opponents of the protective policy would claim that these foreign tariff increases were enacted in the way of retaliation. But as these foreign increases antedate our own tariff revision by many months this charge of retaliation, which has always been held up as a warning by free traders, vanishes into thin air.

It appears that protection is the order of the day abroad as well as at home.

EQUAL VOTING PRIVILEGES

A great majority of the American people will no doubt agree that President Harding, in a speech in a southern city recently, was absolutely right in declaring for equal voting privileges, no one can truthfully deny that it is entirely right and proper for a state to establish such qualifications for voting as it may deem necessary for the protection of stable government, and an educational test, a tax-paying requirement, or other reasonable limitation may be justified by good reasoning—but the restriction should apply to whites and blacks alike.

In addition to this, it might be said also that there should be willing acquiescence in that provision of the Federal constitution which requires that when a state disfranchises any of its citizens its representation in Congress shall be reduced accordingly. This, however, can hardly be expected from the Democrats who are in control of the voting machinery in what is known as "the solid south," judging from the past.

In the opinion of administration officials, the recent advances in the prices of Liberty Bonds are largely due to the legislation now pending in Congress providing the means for the refunding of the foreign debt. With the details of the debts finally worked out and agreed to by the debtor nations, the time of payment of both interest and principal will be definitely determined, and the country will know when the Treasury will be relieved of a corresponding portion of its Liberty Bond burden.

ECONOMY IN GOVERNMENT

In Washington, reductions in the estimated expenditures for the current fiscal year still continue to be made. It is now confidentially predicted that the total expenditures will not exceed $3,940,000,000, and that figure is $94,000,000 less than the estimate sent to Congress on August 10. This is another evidence of the determination of the executive departments to cut every possible dollar from the great burden the taxpayers are obliged to carry.

DO YOU WANT $5,000

If you do, capture a mail robber. The postoffice department is giving wide publicity to the offer of $5,000 reward, to be paid for the arrest of anyone participating in or attempting a mail robbery. The penalty for robbing the mails is ten years in prison for the first offense, and in cases where a dangerous weapon is employed. So be on the watch for your mail robber.

The Minnesota Railroad and Warehouse Commission has issued an order to all Minnesota railroads to show cause why the rates and charge for the transportation of grain and hay within Minnesota should not be reduced as ordered by the Interstate Commerce Commission on Oct. 20. The order to show cause will be heard by the Railroad and Warehouse Commission on Monday, Nov. 21.

The Internal Revenue Department will return Federal income taxes aggregating approximately $15,000 to co-operative creameries of Minnesota. These creameries, through misinformation, filed income tax returns and paid taxes averaging between $100 and $400 each, though purely co-operative creameries are exempt from income tax.

There is a shortage of approximately 1,200,000 homes in the United States but the outlook for building activities is steadily improving, according to members of the Associated General Contractors of America, who are making a tour of the country preparatory to making a report on building conditions to Secretary Hoover.

Names of Minnesota women loom large on the program for the second annual convention of the Fifth Region of the National League of Women Voters, which opened at Des Moines, Iowa, today. The Fifth Region includes the states of Minnesota, Iowa, North and South Dakota, Montana and Wyoming.

"Higher taxes," remarks the Fort Wayne Sentinel, "are the product of the inflated dollar, and the inflated dollar is the product of Woodrow Wilson."

Dec. 4 to 10, "National Safety Week," a national safety campaign will be conducted throughout the country.

during which special exercises will be held in the schools, and civic clubs and other organizations will discuss the best means of reducing the number of automobile accidents.

Dempsey-Carpentier Pictures Now Showing at New Park Theatre

The official motion pictures of the Dempsey-Carpentier world's heavy-weight championship contest, which in all their completeness are being presented at the New Park theatre under the auspices of Tex Rickard, constitute not only an historical but a sociological record.

These are the much discussed pictures taken at the ringside under the personal supervision of Mr. Rickard promoter of the match, and show every detail of the battle, from the building of the arena up to the final blow in the fourth round when Dempsey retained the world's championship.

These are the only authentic movies of the celebrated battle in which Jack Dempsey retained the world's championship after a four round encounter with Georges Carpentier, champion of Europe. Fred C. Quimby, who directed the taking of the pictures, had a battery of more than twenty cameras, and every detail of the struggle is shown from the time the men entered the ring up to the tremendous ovation given both of them as they left the arena.

An outstanding feature of the pictures is the introduction of "slow-motion" photography, by which means the speed is reduced to one-eighth normal action, thus allowing movement of the great championship contest is shown, is recorded the significant fact that this was the first world's championship in which cosmopolitan and enfranchised woman played so large a part. It is not only that Mrs. Kermit Roosevelt, Mrs. Vincetn Astor and other notable society leaders were present at the ringside; the spectator at this marvellous entertainment cannot fail to note the dominant note struck by the women scattered throughout the great arena. Notable, therefore, as these pictures will always be as the official record of the first championship meeting between America and France, they will be notable also for the record they bear on the face of them as to the sporting manners and customs of this present day and age. They show how keen an interest the "female of the species" in the first quarter of the twentieth century took in sports that all through the Victorian era and beyond had been supposed to be exclusively the prerogative of man. And as these pictures demonstrate more conclusively than any series of text-books or lectures could, the tremendous value of skillful boxing in building up a sterner and a healthier citizenship, it may well be that the children of the coming generation will have cause to thank Mr. Rickard for the prospective mothers of the race who went to see the Dempsey-Carpentier championship contest and were able to resolve that their men-children at least Excitement and thrills are in the chariot races in the arena, the battle of the gladiators, the Christian martyrs thrown to the lions, the burning of Rome, one of the most gorgeous scenes ever thrown on the screen, and the hair raising scene of a mad bull tearing round the arena with Lygia tied on its back.

Does Caste System Prevail in Democratic America

The theme of "The Snob", Wanda Hawley's latest photoplay, opens interesting discussions on American snobishness. Is America truly democratic? Is it true that character and industry are sufficient equipment for the young man or woman starting out in life, or are wealth and social positions handy assets, both in business and in social life? In other words, has America any snobs?

es, yes, yes" cry all the fallacy in hearty chorus, all the discouraged aspirants for either business or social success.

"No, No, No!" chant the great army of self-made men and women who are perhaps more numerous in America than in any other country on the globe.

Yes and no", hesitates the student who is working his way through college, perhaps by tending the professors' furnaces, milking the professors' cows, or waiting on table at the students' dining hall.

Ask the student who is working his way through college if he has an equal chance with rich students in the class room, and he will unquestionably tell you that he usually leads in scholarship, because he is more dead in earnest than the student who is merely sent there by a prosperous and indulgent parent, therefore he studies harder, succeeds, and wins the approval and often the warmest friendship of his instructors, as well as the admiration of his less industrious fellow students.

The hero of Wanda Hawley's latest picture play, "The Snob," was a young man who was working his way through college, by waiting on tables at the college dining hall. Because he was the hero of the football team, as well as an all around good fellow, he was naturally the idol of the student body, and debarred from none of the most exclusive social life of the school. When he is snubbed by a visiting lady (the snob, played by Miss Hawley), the students unite to teach the snippy young lady a much needed lesson in democracy.

As a play, this plot furnishes much amusement, and the acting of Miss Hawley is very delightful. The play selected by the Parent-Teachers Association of the Washington-Lincoln schools is not only an excellent vehicle for entertainment, but will also provoke much discussion of American social conditions, especially as they exist in schools and colleges.

Ask the student who is working his way through college if he has an equal chance with rich students in the class room, and he will unquestionably tell you that he usually leads in scholarship, because he is more dead in earnest than the student who is merely sent there by a prosperous and indulgent parent, therefore he studies harder, succeeds, and wins the approval and often the warmest friendship of his instructor, as well as the admiration of his less industrious fellow students.

The hero of Wanda Hawley's latest picture play, "The Snob," was a young man who was working his way through college, by waiting on tables at the college dining hall. Because he was the hero of the football team, as well as an all around good fellow, he was naturally the idol of the student body, and debarred from none of the most exclusive social life of the school. When he is snubbed by a visiting lady (the snob, played by Miss Hawley), the students unite to teach the snippy young lady a much needed lesson in democracy.

As a play, this plot furnishes much amusement, and the acting of Miss Hawley is very delightful. The play selected by the Parent-Teachers Association of the Washington-Lincoln schools is not only an excellent vehicle for entertainment, but will also provoke much discussion of American, social conditions, especially as they exist in schools and colleges.

Mrs. Stuart Oliver gave a farewell party for Perl Generous Tuesday evening. Only a few could be present, but they spent a very pleasant evening. A delicious luncheon was served at 12 o'clock.

Miss Hattie Thompson and Mr. Paul Thompsons were married Nov. 2. We were unable to learn particulars, but did hear that their friends all turned out in the evening to serenade them. Mr. and Mrs. Thompsons have a host of friends who wish them a very pleasant journey through life together.

Schools are closed this week while the teachers are attending the institute in Milaca. Miss Mallery left on the bus Saturday morning and Miss Lillian Anderson took the bus from Onamia Sunday.

There were quite a few Hallow'en pranks played Monday night—most of them quite harmless.

Violet Dahlberg passed away last Wednesday. She had been taken to the hospital at Princeton but her case had been pronounced quite hopeless and at Violet's request, her mother had brought her home Tuesday. She was a sweet, lovable girl and although she had lived here but a few months had made many friends. She was 14 years old at the time of her death. Funeral services were held Thursday at the church. All sympathize with Mr. and Mrs. Dahlberg in their sad loss.

Mrs. Dahlberg's sister and his husband, Mr. and Mrs. Lindgren, were up for the funeral. Also Mr. Wiceen and Mr. Roos, all of Princeton.

Minnesota Highway Department to Have New Home in Capital City

State Road Offices Outgrow Downtown Location in St. Paul; Babcock Accepts Offer of New Quarters on University Avenue; Transfer Expected by January 1.

—Courtesy of the St. Paul Dispatch.

St. Paul, Nov. 11.—Planning to move out of the high rent zone in the downtown section of St. Paul, the Minnesota Highway department expects on January 1 to occupy the building shown in the picture which is being erected for its offices on University avenue, near Lexington avenue, says the St. Paul Dispatch.

After enlargements, following the adoption of Good Roads Amendment No. 1, spread its offices on eight floors of a downtown office building in St. Paul, Commissioner Charles M. Babcock sought new quarters for the highway department both to increase efficiency of his staff and to save on rent.

H. H. Bigelow of Brown & Bigelow, St. Paul, presented a proposal to erect a suitable building on the present location in Quality Park for lease on a month-to-month basis at about half the square foot rental basis paid in downtown office buildings and Commissioner Babcock accepted the proposition.

A. H. Stem, a St. Paul architect, planned the structure to meet the present and future needs of the highway department. The building is 80 by 120 feet, with three stories and basement. The department will occupy the first and second floors and part of the basement, and the third floor will be available should future development demand additional space.

VINELAND

Mrs. Stuart Oliver gave a farewell party for Perl Generous Tuesday evening. Only a few could be present, but they spent a very pleasant evening. A delicious luncheon was served at 12 o'clock.

Miss Hattie Thompson and Mr. Paul Thompson were married Nov. 2. We were unable to learn particulars, but did hear that their friends all turned out in the evening to serenade them. Mr. and Mrs. Thompsons have a host of friends who wish them a very pleasant journey through life together.

Schools are closed this week while the teachers are attending the institute in Milaca. Miss Mallery left on the bus Saturday morning and Miss Lillian Anderson took the bus from Onamia Sunday.

There were quite a few Halloween pranks played Monday night—most of them quite harmless.

Violet Dahlberg passed away last Wednesday. She had been taken to the hospital at Princeton but her case had been pronounced quite hopeless and at Violet's request, her mother had brought her home Tuesday. She was a sweet, lovable girl and although she had lived here but a few months had made many friends. She was 14 years old at the time of her death. Funeral services were held Thursday at the church. All sympathize with Mr. and Mrs. Dahlberg in their sad loss.

Mrs. Dahlberg's sister and his husband, Mr. and Mrs. Lindgren, were up for the funeral. Also Mr. Wiceen and Mr. Roos, all of Princeton.

Minnesota Highway Department to Have New Home in Capital City

State Road Offices Outgrow Downtown Location in St. Paul; Babcock Accepts Offer of New Quarters on University Avenue; Transfer Expected by January 1.

—Courtesy of the St. Paul Dispatch.

St. Paul, Nov. 11.—Planning to move out of the high rent zone in the downtown section of St. Paul, the Minnesota Highway department expects on January 1 to occupy the building shown in the picture which is being erected for its offices on University avenue, near Lexington avenue, says the St. Paul Dispatch.

After enlargements, following the adoption of Good Roads Amendment No. 1, spread its offices on eight floors of a downtown office building in St. Paul, Commissioner Charles M. Babcock sought new quarters for the highway department both to increase efficiency of his staff and to save on rent.

H. H. Bigelow of Brown & Bigelow, St. Paul, presented a proposal to erect a suitable building on the present location in Quality Park for lease on a month-to-month basis at about half the square foot rental basis paid in downtown office buildings and Commissioner Babcock accepted the proposition.

A. H. Stem, a St. Paul architect, planned the structure to meet the present and future needs of the highway department. The building is 80 by 120 feet, with three stories and basement. The department will occupy the first and second floors and part of the basement, and the third floor will be available should future development demand additional space.

J. W. ANDERSON GIVES VERSION OF ACCIDENT

Claims He Was Running on Second Speed When Accident to Mrs. John R. Mutch Occurred

SAID SHE SLIPPED NEAR CAR

Mrs. Mutch Has No Bones Broken, Wheel Ran Over Left Leg, Body Was Badly Bruised

Late Saturday evening Captain Erick Graff located J. W. Anderson of 1306 Norwood street, whose car accidentally struck Mrs. John R. Mutch of 618 South Fifth street, at the corner of South Seventh and Laurel streets, Saturday afternoon.

Mr. Anderson reported to the chief of police Monday morning at 10 o'clock and according to City Attorney Fullerton stated he was driving down South Seventh street as far as Laurel. He was going north on Seventh and turned on the corner. In his car he had an elderly lady who he was taking to Dr. J. A. Thabes' office. He claimed to have run his car in second speed and that he was going slowly.

Mr. Anderson stated that Mrs. Mutch and a lady with her came from the Citizens State bank corner and when they noticed him Mrs. Mutch, as stated by Mr. Anderson, got nervous and ran and got in front of his car, slipped and fell and her arm caught on the bumper. Mr. Anderson claims he stopped his car in three feet.

Mr. Anderson is about 60 years old, an old resident of Brainerd, who was in business in Southeast Brainerd 18 years ago.

Mrs. John R. Mutch is at her home and her condition was thought so serious that her son, George W. Lucas, was summoned from Bemidji. No bones were broken, but she was badly bruised from head to foot and it is claimed a wheel ran over her left leg. A vein was broken over her eyes. She vomited blood Saturday night to Sunday morning at 3 o'clock, it was reported.

Flowers from the Sophomore class of the high school, of which he had been president, mingled their sweet perfumes with countless floral emblems from many friends and societies.

The active pallbearers were members of the faculty of Brainerd high school, and the honorary pallbearers were fellow students.

FARGO SPLITS DOUBLE MATCH WITH BRAINERD

Crack Pin Men From Two Cities Clashed Before Large Crowd at Local Alleys

OELWEIN GETS HIGH AVERAGE

Consistent Bowling Featured Both Afternoon and Evening Games

After losing the first 3-game match against Fargo's bowling quint, Brainerd's crack maple busters came right back with a clean victory in the evening's tilt of the double-header at the local alleys Sunday.

Both teams rolled good, consistent games before a large crowd of enthusiastic rooters, who were well paid for their time spent.

The visitors were a nice bunch of fellows, one of whom, Fred Cook, is well known in Brainerd, being the former owner of the local alleys.

Competition was very keen, especially so between the two anchor men, Sasser and Ball, the latter winning by a small margin of 5 pins in the first game and 4 in the last. Oelwein of the Brainerd club showed the boys how to get the pins, shooting a total of 1122 for the six games or an average of 187, while Benda rocked the head pin for high single game with 210.

Fargo's total for the afternoon was 2720 against 2647 for Brainerd; the evening's scores were, Fargo 2561, and Brainerd 2754.

CHARGE GAME LAW VIOLATIONS

Harry J. LaDue of the State Game and Fish Commission Swears Out Three Complaints

THE CLAIM LICENSES ALTERED

One Complaint Asserts a Hunter Offered to Sell LaDue a Deer in Former's Possession

The first complaints of their kind here charging alleged game law violations were filed in Brainerd municipal court by Harry J. LaDue of the state game and fish commission.

In the first he charged that on November 18 George Jenkins altered and changed and loaned and transferred to another resident his big game hunting license No. 22800 for 1921 issued by the county auditor of Crow Wing county by attaching the seal thereof to a 214 lb. buck deer and the tag thereof to a 114 pound doe deer.

He further charges that on November 18 Hugh Buchite borrowed from Peter Hanson a big game hunting license for 1921, issued by the county auditor of Crow Wing county to Peter Hanson, No. 22799 and used same upon a deer in his possession.

He charges that on Nov. 18 Peter Hanson offered to sell him a deer in his possession. All pleaded not guilty, gave recognizances for $100 each, asked jury trials which will be held November 28 at 2 p. m.

MEN PASS, INSTITUTIONS ABIDE

Dr. George E. Burlingame Preaches on Topic "Legacy of St. Paul to the World"

"One of the striking differences between barbarian and civilization is in the social, political and cultural institutions which the latter has created, and which persist despite the decimation wrought by death." With this statement Geo. E. Burlingame, in a sermon at the First Baptist church yesterday morning, argued for the devotion of life and gifts and talents to the building of the Church of Christ as the most beneficent and influential of all the institutions of human society.

The sermon was on "The Legacy of Paul to the World", and the speaker gave a brief resume of the career of Saul of Tarsus, the most relentless enemy that Christianity ever had until he was transformed into a believer and an apostle of the Christian faith by the appearance of the Risen Lord to him near Damascus.

For thirty years from that time Paul gave himself to the task of persuading his fellow men to receive Christ as their Saviour and Lord. No less than sixty-five individuals are named in the New Testament whom he seems to have won the Christian faith.

Paul was a church builder, and his achievements at Corinth—the Chicago of the Graeco-Roman world—at Ephesus, and at Philippi, are miracles worthy of comparison with his own conversion.

Facing the perpetual menace which imperils the continuity of the Christian church in "the last enemy, Death," Paul gave himself to the work of enlisting and training youth who should carry on his ministry after his passing.

These three streams of influence characterize Paul's great contribution to the world: his personal testimony to the saving grace of God in Christ; his careful and cumulative work as a builder of churches—not houses, but brotherhoods—and his provision for the future leadership of the church. These three features of his career present an example worthy of emulation. To give our testimony with a view to winning others to Christ; to invest our lives in the building of the church; and to train

Claims He Was Running on Second Speed When Accident to Mrs. John R. Mutch Occurred

SAID SHE SLIPPED NEAR CAR

Mrs. Mutch Has No Bones Broken, Wheel Ran Over Left Leg, Body Was Badly Bruised

Late Saturday evening Captain Erick Graff located J. W. Anderson of 1306 Norwood street, whose car accidentally struck Mrs. John R. Mutch of 613 South Fifth street, at the corner of South Seventh and Laurel streets, Saturday afternoon.

Mr. Anderson reported to the chief of police Monday morning at 10 o'clock and according to City Attorney Fullerton stated he was driving down South Seventh street as far as Laurel. He was going north on Seventh and turned on the corner. In his car he had an elderly lady who he was taking to Dr. J. A. Thabes' office. He claimed to have run his car in second speed and that he was going slowly.

Mr. Anderson stated that Mrs. Mutch and a lady with her came from the Citizens State bank corner and when they noticed him Mrs. Mutch, as stated by Mr. Anderson, got nervous and ran and got in front of his car, slipped and fell and her arm caught on the bumper. Mr. Anderson claims he stopped his car in three feet.

Mr. Anderson is about 60 years old, an old resident of Brainerd, who was in business in Southeast Brainerd 18 years ago.

Mrs. John R. Mutch is at her home and her condition was thought as serious that her son, George W. Lucas, was summoned from Bemidji. No bones were broken, but she was badly bruised from head to foot and it is claimed a wheel ran over her left leg. A vein was broken over her eyes. She vomited blood Saturday night to Sunday morning at 3 o'clock, it was reported.

LARGE FUNERAL HELD

Crowds Filled Christian Science Hall to Attend Services Over Remains of Bobby Hitch

Crowds filled Christian Science hall Saturday afternoon to attend the Christian Science church funeral services over the remains of Bobby Hitch. Hundreds more were unable to gain admittance and lingered in the hall and stairs of Iron Exchange building.

Mrs. Carl Adams, first reader of the church officiated. Mrs. Samuel Hawkins sang, "No Night There" and "Wait, My Heart Upon the Lord". The services were simple, but impressive.

Flowers from the Sophomore class of the high school, of which he had been president, mingled their sweet perfumes with countless floral emblems from many friends and societies.

The active pallbearers were members of the faculty of Brainerd high school, and the honorary pallbearers were fellow students.

FARGO SPLITS DOUBLE MATCH WITH BRAINERD

Crack Pin Men From Two Cities Clashed Before Large Crowd at Local Alleys

OELWEIN GETS HIGH AVERAGE

Consistent Bowling Featured Both Afternoon and Evening Games

After losing the first 3-game match against Fargo's bowling quint, Brainerd's crack maple busters came right back with a clean victory in the evening's tilt of the double-header at the local alleys Sunday.

Both teams rolled good, consistent games before a large crowd of enthusiastic rooters, who were well paid for their time spent.

The visitors were a nice bunch of fellows, one of whom, Fred Cook, is well known in Brainerd, being the former owner of the local alleys.

Competition was very keen, especially so between the two anchor men, Sasser and Ball, the latter winning by a small margin of 5 pins in the first game and 4 in the last. Oelwein of the Brainerd club showed the boys how to get the pins, shooting a total of 1122 for the six games or an average of 187, while Benda rocked the head pin for high single game with 210.

Fargo's total for the afternoon was 2720 against 2647 for Brainerd; the evening's scores were, Fargo 2561, and Brainerd 2754.

CHARGE GAME LAW VIOLATIONS

Harry J. LaDue of the State Game and Fish Commission Swears Out Three Complaints

THE CLAIM LICENSES ALTERED

One Complaint Asserts a Hunter Offered to Sell LaDue a Deer in Former's Possession

The first complaints of their kind here charging alleged game law violations were filed in Brainerd municipal court by Harry J. LaDue of the state game and fish commission.

In the first he charged that on November 18 George Jenkins altered and changed and loaned and transferred to another resident his big game hunting license No. 22800 for 1921 issued by the county auditor of Crow Wing county by attaching the seal thereof to a 214 lb. buck deer and the tag thereof to a 114 pound doe deer.

He further charges that on November 18 Hugh Buchite borrowed from Peter Hanson a big game hunting license for 1921, issued by the county auditor of Crow Wing county to Peter Hanson, No. 22799 and used same upon a deer in his possession.

He charges that on Nov. 18 Peter Hanson offered to sell him a deer in his possession. All pleaded not guilty, gave recognizances for $100 each, asked jury trials which will be held November 28 at 2 p. m.

Moscow a City of Refugees; Controlled by Soviet Soldiers

By EDWIN W. HULLINGER, (United Press Staff Correspondent.)
Moscow. (By Mail.)—Our train rolled into Moscow one afternoon, and we alighted on a platform filled with refugees.

Outside we saw what looked like an entire market-place full of them, all with packs, colored shawls, and dirty handkerchiefs or frousy caps on their heads, with an occasional droshtky standing out here and there among the crowd.

It seemed as if the whole city full of fugitives were encamped here in front of the beautiful Gothic station. This is a daily scene at train time.

Shouting and gesticulating, a dozen izvostchiki (coachmen) started for me. After bargaining furiously a few minutes over the price, one of them held out his hat and all pitched their drivers' tags into it, bidding me to draw "as a newly arrived tavarishch (comrade) from America."

The driver, whose number I drew, scooted for his horse and wagon. The aged porters, with the holes in their shoes stuffed with rags to keep the cold out, maneuvered our luggage upon the wagon. We—Herbert Pulitzer, of the New York World, an English newspaperman, and myself climbed on top, and, after the driver had distributed us about like ballast to keep the outfit upright, we started off into the great capital of the world revolution.

We were unescorted. Our passports had been taken from us at the frontier. We had not means of identifying ourselves, if challenged by a Red Guard.

One of the first vehicles we met was an armored motor tank, in which we could see the nodding helmets of a dozen Red Guards.

Our route took us first through a deserted market zone, its long rows of bolted shop fronts presenting very much the appearance of the river market district of Chicago early in the morning when the meat trucks have just begun to circulate.

On the sidewalks an uninterrupted procession of refugees kept passing and passing, some towards the station, others away from it, some with packs, some without. Moscow seemed then, as it has since, to be a city of refugees.

Occasionally the monotony was broken by the drab figure of a Red guard, his long overcoat flapping against his ankles, his drab helmet lighted up by the big red star of the revolution. These stolid soldiers of the revolution are everywhere, as much a part of the physical setting of Red Moscow as the drab buildings themselves, from which their uniforms seem to have taken their color.

They are a silent lot—phlegmatic stolid, unreasoning, yet not overbearing or hostile, mostly peasant boys, responsive to a pleasant smile or friendly word.

No street repair work has been done in Moscow since the revolution, and the cobblestone thoroughfares are pock-marked with jagged holes. Between ruts, we carried on a spasmodic conversation with our driver.

He was "no Bolshevik," he explained emphatically. Like the masses of all nations at all times, he cut his political creed according to the size of his bread ration. Bad bread means bad government, he reasoned.

"Have you a Soviet republic in the United States, too?" he inquired eagerly. He was surprised when I answered "no." He had thought every country had them.

The resuming petty commercial life, following the government's recent decree permitting small trade, became increasingly evident as we neared the center of the city. Shop after shop, recently opened, broke the monotony of the long blocks of boarded-up window fronts. Apple-women were bending over their stands. Near the Theater Place I saw an aged bootblack, kneeling beside his customer.

We stopped in front of a hotel that seemed closed for the winter, the Savoy, one of the hostleries reserved for foreigners. The manager of the hotel, an earnest young proletarian, who may have been a plumber or machine-shop worker before, sent us up to the commander of the hotel. Each hostelry, being a government institution, has both a military and civil staff. The manager is in charge of the civilian department—bellboys, chambermaids, porters, etc. The commander is responsible for the protection of the house and directly responsible to the Soviet government.

Two or three Red guards stood near the booking desk. One of them was detailed to take us in charge. The commander informed us that before we could get a room we must go to the "Glavni Commandant," the "chief commander," or billeting officer, who disposed of all quarters in the city, like the American billeting officer in the occupied towns on the Rhine.

teous and accommodating, but explained that he had to have the formal permission of the foreign office. He also asked us to see our "permits" (papers given foreigners in lieu of their passports which are not returned until you leave the country). He did, however, promise to hold a room until the Foreign Office instructed him.

At the Foreign Office we were informed that the head of the "American department" (the guardian angel of all Americans in Moscow) would not be back until 11 that evening, but that we would surely be taken care of.

The foreign office is in the Metropole Hotel, one of Moscow's larger hotels. In it, the staff work, eat and sleep.

The broad Theater Place nearby with the Grecian theater at one end and its gardens stretching two blocks through the center of the city, was another sea of refugees. Some peasants, with their packs over their shoulders, pilgrims from the ever-enlarging famine zone. Others, ordinary residents of Moscow, with here and there a middle-classer, a former "bourgeois" in his shabby business clothes. I was struck by the small number of middle class. All, proletarians, peasants, or middle class, were in old clothes. I have not yet seen a white collar in all Moscow.

We had dinner in a dainty little restaurant, just reopened, finished in blue. The manager, a young university student, of fine features, greeted us in perfect English. He said his family had been wealthy. They had, "fortunately, been able to save enough to start this eating house when the new economic regime was inaugurated." He added, "We are very thankful to have a restaurant. It at least assures us of enough to eat."

I have never eaten better. The portions were heaping, and the cuisine was equal to Broadway's best. We had vegetable soup, Russian style; mutton chops; roasted potatoes in gravy; bread and butter; chocolate; French pastry, and a small peach. Our bill was seventy-five thousand roubles each.

There were only three other customers, all foreigners. The proprietor explained that they were obliged to charge such prices that none but foreigners, with foreign exchange, could afford to patronize them.

Before we left, a Red officer sat down at one of the tables. I have eaten at this restaurant several times since, and have never seen anyone but foreigners or Red officers.

The street outside was dimly lighted by a small electric lamp at the corner. The Theater Place, however, the region of the foreign office and certain other central sections of the city were as bright as the outlying business sections, say of Kansas City or Los Angeles.

At the foreign office, we were quizzed briefly by Comrade Weinstein, head of the American section, and informed that a double room was ready for us at the Savoy. The bellhop wore the long-flowing, shirt-coat of Russia, a loose garment gathered at the waist by a belt, and reaching down to the ankles. After five minutes of bargaining, he agreed to carry our five suitcases up the four flights of stairs for ten thousand roubles.

A single blanket was thrown over the bed as bed-clothing. The bellhop entered with tea. He quickly bent over the mattress when I told him—not, as I thought—to see whether their really were insects, but simply to see what kind they were. The big red ones bit viciously, he explained; the gray ones were less savage, and a few kinds did not bite at all. They just crawled. Nearly all the hotels in Moscow have become infested in this way since they were closed. Insect powder, to be sprinkled over the mattress under the bed-clothing, and in little rings on the floor around each bedstead, is as necessary a part of a traveler's equipment in Russia as the toothbrush.

The bellhop promised to bring up a pail of hot water from the second floor in the morning, as the plumbing hadn't been repaired.

IF BACK HURTS USE SALTS FOR KIDNEYS

EAT LESS MEAT IF KIDNEYS FEEL LIKE LEAD OR BLADDER BOTHERS

Most folks forget that the kidneys, like the bowels, get sluggish and clogged and need a flushing occasionally, else we have backache and dull misery in the kidney region, severe headaches, rheumatic twinges, torpid liver, acid stomach, sleeplessness and all sorts of bladder disorders.

You simply must keep your kidneys active and clean, and the moment you feel an ache or pain in the kidney region, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good drug store here, take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is harmless to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to normal activity. It also neutralizes the acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is harmless; inexpensive; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everybody should take now and then to keep their kidneys clean, thus avoiding serious complications.

A well-known local druggist says he sells lots of Jad Salts to folks who believe in overcoming kidney trouble while it is only trouble. Adv.

Moscow a City of Refugees; Controlled by Soviet Soldiers

By EDWIN W. HULLINGER,
(United Press Staff Correspondent.)
Moscow. (By Mail.)—Our train rolled into Moscow one afternoon, and we alighted on a platform filled with refugees.

Outside we saw what looked like an entire market-place full of them, all with packs, colored shawls, and dirty handkerchiefs or frousy caps on their heads, with an occasional drowsy-looking standing out here and there among the crowd.

It seemed as if the whole city full of fugitives were camped here in front of the beautiful Gothic station. This is a daily scene at train time.

Shouting and gesticulating, a dozen izvoshtchiki (coachmen) started for me. After bargaining furiously a few minutes over the price, one of them held out his hat and all pitched their drivers' tags into it, bidding me to draw "as a newly arrived tavishtchik (comrade) from America."

The driver, whose number I drew, scooted for his horse and wagon. The aged porters, with the holes in their shoes stuffed with rags to keep the cold out, manoeuvred our luggage upon the wagon. We—Herbert Pulitzer, of the New York World, an English newspaperman, and myself climbed on top, and, after the driver had distributed us about like ballast to keep the outfit upright, we started off into the great capital of the world revolution.

We were unescorted. Our passports had been taken from us at the frontier. We had not means of identifying ourselves, if challenged by a Red Guard.

One of the first vehicles we met was an armored motor tank, in which we could see the nodding helmets of a dozen Red Guards.

Our route took us first through a deserted market zone, its long rows of bolted shop fronts presenting very much the appearance of the river market district of Chicago early in the morning when the meat trucks have just begun to circulate.

On the sidewalks an uninterrupted procession of refugees kept passing and passing, some towards the station, others away from it, some with packs, some without. Moscow seemed then, as it has since, to be a city of refugees.

Occasionally the monotony was broken by the drab figure of a Red guard, his long overcoat flapping against his ankles, his drab helmet lighted up by the big red star of the revolution. These stolid soldiers of the revolution are everywhere, as much a part of the physical setting of Red Moscow as the drab buildings themselves, from which their uniforms seem to have taken their color.

They are a silent lot—phlegmatic, stolid, unreasoning, yet not overbearing or hostile, mostly peasant boys, responsive to a pleasant smile or friendly word.

No street repair work has been done in Moscow since the revolution, and the cobblestone thoroughfares are pock-marked with jagged holes. Between ruts, we carried on a spasmodic conversation with our driver.

He was "no Bolshevik," he explained emphatically. Like the masses of all nations at all times, he cut his political creed according to the size of his bread ration. Bad bread means bad government, he reasoned.

"Have you a Soviet republic in the United States, too?" he inquired eagerly. He was surprised when I answered "no." He had thought every country had them.

The resuming petty commercial life, following the government's recent decree permitting small trade, became increasingly evident as we neared the center of the city. Shop after shop, recently opened, broke the monotony of the long blocks of boarded-up window fronts. Apple-women were bending over their stands. Near the Theater Place I saw an aged bootblack, kneeling beside his customer.

We stopped in front of a hotel that seemed closed for the winter, the Savoy, one of the hostleries reserved for foreigners. The manager of the hotel, an earnest young proletarian, who may have been a plumber or machine-shop worker before, sent us up to the commander of the hotel. Each hostelry, being a government institution, has both a military and civil staff. The manager is in charge of the civilian department—bellboys, chambermaids, porters, etc. The commander is responsible for the protection of the house and directly responsible to the Soviet government.

Two or three Red guards stood near the booking desk. One of them was detailed to take us in charge. The commander informed us that before we could get a room we must go to the "Glavin Commandant," the "chief commander," or billeting officer, who disposed of all quarters in the city, like the American billeting officer in the occupied towns on the Rhine.

teous and accommodating, but explained that he had to have the formal permission of the foreign office. He also asked us to see our "permits" (papers given foreigners in lieu of their passports which are not returned until you leave the country). He did, however, promise to hold a room until the Foreign Office instructed him.

At the Foreign Office we were informed that the head of the "American department" (the guardian angel of all Americans in Moscow) would not be back until 11 that evening, but that we would surely be taken care of.

The foreign office is in the Metropole Hotel, one of Moscow's larger hotels. In it, the staff work, eat and sleep. The broad Theater Place nearby with the Grecian theater at one end and it gardens stretching two blocks through the center of the city, was another sea of refugees. Some peasants, with their packs over their shoulders, pilgrims from the ever-enlarging famine zone. Others, ordinary residents of Moscow, with here and there a middle-classer, a former "bourgeois" in his shabby business clothes. I was struck by the small number of middle class. All, proletarians, peasants, or middle class, were in old clothes. I have not yet seen a white collar in all Moscow.

We had dinner in a dainty little restaurant, just reopened, finished in blue. The manager, a young university student, of fine features, greeted us in perfect English. He said his family had been wealthy. They had, "fortunately, been able to save enough to start this eating house when the new economic regime was inaugurated." He added, "We are very thankful to have a restaurant. It at least assures us of enough to eat."

I have never eaten better. The portions were heaping, and the cuisine was equal to Broadway's best. We had vegetable soup, Russian style; mutton chops; roasted potatoes in gravy; bread and butter; chocolate; French pastry, and a small peach. Our bill was seventy-five thousand roubles each.

There were only three other customers, all foreigners. The proprietor explained that they were obliged to charge such prices that none but foreigners, with foreign exchange, could afford to patronize them.

Before we left, a Red officer sat down at one of the tables. I have eaten at this restaurant several times since, and have never seen anyone but foreigners or Red officers.

The street outside was dimly lighted by a small electric lamp at the corner. The Theater Place, however, the region of the foreign office and certain other central sections of the city were as bright as the outlying business sections, say of Kansas City or Los Angeles.

At the foreign office, we were quizzed briefly by Comrade Weinstein, head of the American section, and informed that a double room was ready for us at the Savoy. The bellhop wore the long-flowing, shirt-coat of Russia, a loose garment gathered at the waist by a belt, and reaching down to the ankles. After five minutes of bargaining, he agreed to carry our five suitcases up the four flights of stairs for ten thousand roubles.

A single blanket was thrown over the bed as bed-clothing. The bellhop entered with tea. He quickly bent over the mattress when I told him—not, as I thought—to see whether their really were insects, but simply to see what kind they were. The big red ones bit viciously, he explained; the gray ones were less savage, and a few kinds did not bite at all. They just crawled. Nearly all the hotels in Moscow have become infested in this way since they were closed. Insect powder, to be sprinkled over the mattress under the bed-clothing, and in little rings on the floor around each bedstead, is as necessary a part of a traveler's equipment in Russia as the toothbrush.

The bellhop promised to bring up a pail of hot water from the second floor in the morning, as the plumbing hadn't been repaired.
